GOLDEN GATE UNIVERSITY

School of Law

"Golden Gate University provides the perfect training ground for public interest lawyers by integrating excellent legal education in the classroom with real-life experiences in internships."

-Kristin Henry (JD 02), Associate Attorney, Sierra Club; Golden Gate Law Adjunct Professor; Former Golden Gate Public Interest Law Scholar

olden Gate University School of Law has been training lawyers for over a century. Founded in 1901 as the YMCA Evening Law School, Golden Gate Law today offers a comprehensive core curriculum, award-winning clinics, and flexible day and evening programs—all in the heart of San Francisco's legal and financial district.

Golden Gate Law students learn theory, legal reasoning, problem-solving, and writing, with an emphasis on legal ethics and the practical skills essential for effective advocacy. Some become judges, some work in private law firms; others serve in corporations, nonprofit organizations, and government agencies. The skills acquired at Golden Gate Law can translate well into business, public policy, and other nonlegal arenas.

- Founded in 1901 as the YMCA Evening Law School
- Accredited by the American Bar Association since 1956
- Extensive clinical program with awardwinning on-site and off-site clinics
- Choice of three-year daytime program or four-year evening program
- Honors Lawyering Program lets students complete two semester-long professional apprenticeships as part of the three-year day program
- Public Interest Law and Public Interest Law Scholars programs with outstanding mentoring, pro bono, and networking opportunities
- Environmental Law Program ranked in the top 20 by US News and World Report for the past five years
- More than 150 distinguished full-time and adjunct faculty members with extensive professional legal experience
- One of the first fully accredited law schools to appoint a woman and an African-American as deans

Golden Gate Law offers a broad JD curriculum that allows students to explore many practice areas. The curriculum is designed to encompass the multiple facets and everexpanding reach of the law. The JD curriculum is suitable for students who choose to take a general approach to their legal education or for students who have a clear understanding of the direction they would like their career to take. Whether interested in litigation, transactional practice, or public policy work, students at Golden Gate Law can pursue their interests in a wide range of practice areas, from corporate, real estate, and tax law to environmental, employment, immigration, and other aspects of public interest law.

In addition to the standard Doctor of Jurisprudence degree, Golden Gate Law also offers two combined degrees:

- JD/MBA: Students can supplement their JD with an MBA. This combined program enables students to reduce both cost and time in either program by sharing credits toward each degree. Depending upon their pre-law coursework, students may earn the MBA in two or fewer additional semesters.
- JD/PhD in Clinical Psychology: Students receive a JD from Golden Gate Law and a PhD in Clinical Psychology from the Pacific Graduate School of Psychology. For more information on the PhD program contact the Pacific Graduate School of Psychology at 650-843-3419 or www.pgsp.edu.

Students with notable academic and extracurricular achievements can elect to participate in the unique Honors Lawyering Program. In this alternative three-year curriculum, JD students spend one semester in their second and third years in legal apprenticeships, take smaller classes during the summers, and participate in unique networking opportunities. Graduates of the HLP program are well prepared for practice, with enhanced resources and experience to help them reach their career aspirations.

Golden Gate Law also supports many judicial externships, in which students work in judges' chambers at all levels of state and federal courts with a full range of judicial assignments. These externships provide a unique opportunity to gain insight and experience that have career-long benefits.

Summer Study Abroad: While enrolled at Golden Gate Law, students can study comparative and international law in the School of Law's summer study-abroad program in Paris. Golden Gate Law students can also participate in summer abroad programs offered by other ABA-accredited law schools.

Environmental Law and Justice Clinic

In 1994 Golden Gate Law became one of the nation's first law schools to establish an on-site environmental justice clinic to address the needs of low-income communities disproportionately impacted by industrial pollution.

Women's Employment Rights Clinic

Through the Women's Employment Rights Clinic, founded in 1993, students at Golden Gate Law represent low-income, often immigrant workers who might otherwise be deprived of legal counsel in disputes with employers.

In spring 2006 the Environmental Law and Justice Clinic received a CLEA Award from the Clinical Legal Education Association for Excellence in a Public Interest Case or Project for its Southeast San Francisco Energy Project. As part of this project, the clinic represented client organizations seeking to shut down an aging and polluting power plant in the Bayview-Hunter's Point section of San Francisco. In May 2006, the plant officially closed. The Environmental Law and Justice Clinic is just one reason Golden Gate Law's environmental law program is rated one of the nation's top 20 and one of California's top three such programs by US News and World Report.

Golden Gate Law also offers these off-site field placement clinics:

- Capital Post-Conviction Defense Clinic
- Civil Field Placement Clinic

ADMISSIONS

Golden Gate Law strives to admit students who are looking for the opportunity to pursue a legal education that provides a comprehensive approach to legal learning. The application process is designed to identify individual students who possess the academic knowledge and skills to succeed in the classroom while also demonstrating the experiences and characteristics that add to the overall law school community.

The Admissions Committee evaluates applicants to determine whether the objective indicators, such as the LSAT scores and post-secondary transcripts, indicate the preparedness to meet the challenges of legal study. The committee also reviews evidence of strong writing ability, leadership skills or potential, and the motivation to attend Golden Gate Law. Personal statements, letters of recommendation, and other materials are used to develop the Admissions Committee's understanding of an applicant. The committee is looking for materials that provide an honest statement about the applicant's goals, anticipated challenges, and preferred learning environment.

Golden Gate Law does not require a specific course of undergraduate study to apply, but does require that a student has or will have completed an undergraduate degree at an accredited institution prior to matriculation. An applicant must submit a complete application by the specific term deadline:

The Admissions Committee prefers not to consider LSAT scores that are more than three years old, and in no case will the committee consider a score that is more than five years old.

Apply online at www.ggu.edu/law or visit the LSAC website at www.lsac.org. Applicants may also complete an application by downloading the application from our website.
