LLM IN ENVIRONMENTAL LAW

The LLM in Environmental Law Program combines advanced study of US and international environmental law with practical experience in handling cases through our Environmental Law & Justice Clinic.

You will have the opportunity to work closely with faculty and attorneys in researching, investigating, and preparing publishable papers on environmental topics and can work in government agencies, private firms, and public interest organizations for credit. You might attend a seminar on endangered species in the morning and make an argument concerning the Endangered Species Act before a governmental agency that afternoon.

You can also take an active role in the Law School's annual Environmental Law Symposium, which in recent years has addressed such topics as California's renewable energy sector and equitable access to urban parklands. The active, student-run Environmental Law Society sponsors coastal cleanups, panels, lectures featuring environmental experts from the public and private sectors, sales of eco-friendly products, teach-ins, and other programs throughout the year.

“Golden Gate offers many opportunities for students to improve their knowledge. I really liked the academic environment and collegiality, and the faculty truly cares about its students.”

— Vo Thi Phuong Mai
(LLM in Environmental Law 09) and former Visiting Fulbright Scholar, who received the Law School's 2009
Outstanding LLM Student Award.

“As a lawyer, you learn about a subject in a vacuum, depending on the case on which you happen to be working. I'd always felt an insecurity not knowing more about the big picture of how environmental regulations relate to each other. Golden Gate's LLM program gives environmental lawyers a better overview of this immense body of law.”

— Robert Byrne
(LLM in Environmental Law 02),
Supervising Deputy Attorney
General, Natural Resources
Law Section, California
Department of Justice

CLINIC DIRECTOR AND ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR
HELEN KANG

“It is no surprise that many of our former ELJC students are now my colleagues in the environmental field.”

— Clinic Director and Associate Professor Helen Kang
Environmental Law & Justice Clinic (ELJC)

Students gain practical experience in the Environmental Law & Justice Clinic, one of the first such clinics at a US law school. Student clinicians directly represent environmental organizations and community groups in low-income and minority communities on real-life public health, toxics, and environmental justice issues. The clinic’s many honors include a 2009 Environmental Award from the US Environmental Protection Agency.

CLIMATE CHANGE

Golden Gate Law has been a leader in developing innovative courses on global climate change. Global Warming & the Courts, taught by two of the California attorney general’s top climate change lawyers, explores the courts’ ability to address this global threat. Global Warming & Renewable Energy, taught by Professor Alan Ramo, analyzes the potential for renewable energy to reduce global warming. Climate Change & International Law examines the potential role of the international legal community in confronting climate change.

The Intellectual Property Law Center brings together students, faculty, lawyers, judges, and IP law scholars to explore developments in the fast-changing world of IP law and policy. The center is led by faculty with extensive IP law experience, assisted by a distinguished advisory board comprised of prominent attorneys from Bay Area IP firms, in-house counsel, federal judges, and lawyers at the US Patent and Trademark Office. With its proximity to Silicon Valley and close ties to California's entertainment centers, the Law School and IP Law Center offer excellent opportunities for research and training in IP law. The center sponsors a prestigious annual Intellectual Property Law Conference, as well as the Distinguished Intellectual Property Law Speaker Series (which in 2009 included William Patry, senior copyright counsel, Google, Inc.), an IP Mentorship Program, an IP section in the Law Library, and an alumni network listserv to keep current and former students apprised of IP events and job opportunities.

LLM IN TAXATION

The Golden Gate Law LLM in Taxation Program, established more than 30 years ago, is one of the preeminent graduate tax law programs in the Western United States and the only such program in the San Francisco Bay Area. As a student in the program, you will gain a solid foundation in the substantive, procedural, and technical aspects of tax practice as well as the policies underlying state and federal tax law.

The program offers advanced instruction in six core areas: business taxes, estate planning, tax litigation and procedure, international taxation, employee benefits, and general taxation. The program is taught by experienced tax practitioners, IRS and government attorneys, and full-time tax professors, and emphasizes both an academic and a practical approach to tax law. You'll enjoy numerous opportunities for clinical fieldwork, independent study, and extended research and writing for scholarly publication.

PROFESSIONAL AND STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS

Golden Gate Law's LLM in Taxation Program is closely affiliated with the San Francisco and California taxation law communities. Students can participate in job fairs and other professional and social programs of the Bar Association of San Francisco and Bay Area Young Tax Lawyers Association, which are held on and near campus. Many LLM students also participate in the CAPITAL Group, a student organization for business, tax, and real estate law students.

“I began taking a few tax and estate planning courses at GGU without ever intending to actually finish the whole program, but [Adjunct Professor] Jon Vaught’s estate planning classes sealed the deal for me. I had been bitten by the LLM Tax bug. I know for a fact that the LLM in Tax helped me obtain my first estate planning job at the Myers Law Firm in San Francisco. And the GGU community is so supportive – I feel like I am surrounded by a whole team of confidantes every time I am faced with a complicated tax matter. GGU rocks!”

— Amir Atashi Rang (LLM in Taxation 04), Principal, Atashi Rang Law Firm

AMIR ATASHI RANG
(LLM 04)

PRO BONO TAX CLINIC

The Pro Bono Tax Clinic provides students with the opportunity to assist low-income individuals in certain tax disputes before the California Board of Equalization (BOE). Under the direct supervision of a BOE attorney, students provide legal assistance with claims involving Renter's Assistance Credits, California residency issues, Head of Household status, and other issues. The students meet regularly with a BOE attorney who instructs them about the relevant law and assists them in developing their clients' factual and legal arguments. The students draft procedural letters, legal memoranda and briefs that are submitted to the BOE. Students may also have the opportunity to argue the client's case at a BOE hearing. All LLM in Taxation students are eligible to participate in the clinic.

CERTIFICATE IN ESTATE PLANNING

Practitioners who do not wish to complete the full LLM in Taxation degree may want to consider Golden Gate Law's Estate Planning Certificate. The Estate Planning Certificate requires 16 units of instruction in the LLM in Taxation Program, 11 from among required courses. Courses must be taken for credit (not as an auditor), and the certificate is available only to students who are not seeking the LLM in Taxation degree.

LLM IN INTERNATIONAL LEGAL STUDIES

The LLM in International Legal Studies Program provides in-depth coverage of specialized areas of international and comparative law, with an emphasis on the legal, cultural, sociological, and business activities and interactions among the countries of the Pacific Rim, Europe, and other regions. The LLM program's primary objectives are to acquaint American students with the legal traditions of other countries and encourage all students to understand similarities and differences in international legal principles.

American and foreign law school graduates may pursue the LLM degree. Foreign law school graduates interested in comparative aspects of United States law should enroll in Graduate Legal Research and Introduction to the US Legal System and may take other courses offered through the Law School's Doctor of Jurisprudence (JD) degree program.

The curriculum introduces students to the fundamental principles of international law and the current rules governing their application and examines the effect of cultural practices and policies on international trade, human rights, and the environment. Students are exposed to practical applications of negotiating skills and various methods of international dispute settlement.

SJD IN INTERNATIONAL LEGAL STUDIES

The Doctor of Juridical Science (SJD) in International Legal Studies is a terminal degree that gives students the opportunity to acquire specialized knowledge in a particular area of international law. Students spend at least two semesters in residency and then work with a supervisor and committee to complete a publishable dissertation. Students must have a graduate degree in law (LLM or its equivalent) to be admitted to the SJD program. American and foreign-educated law school graduates may pursue the SJD degree.

OTHER OPPORTUNITIES

The Sompong Sucharitkul Center for Advanced International Legal Studies hosts the prestigious Annual Fulbright Symposium on Current International Legal Issues and publishes a scholarly journal, the Annual Survey of International and Comparative Law. Both LLM and SJD students can participate in the Law School's Summer Study Abroad Program in Paris, where American students study comparative law together with French students, in courses taught by noted French and American scholars. In addition, Golden Gate Law School student teams have placed highly at the prestigious Jessup International Law Moot Court and Outer Space Moot Court competitions.

Both foreign and American students enjoy many educational, professional and social programs throughout the year that are sponsored by the Golden Gate International Law Students Association, which brings distinguished lecturers and hosts social gatherings. With their diverse faculty and San Francisco location, both the LLM and the SJD in International Legal Studies Programs provide unparalleled opportunities for studying international law in an international setting.

LLM IN UNITED STATES LEGAL STUDIES

Since 1997, more than 250 lawyers and law graduates from 65 nations have received an LLM in United States Legal Studies from Golden Gate. The program serves lawyers and law graduates from the United States and abroad. Most foreign law graduates come to gain a basic understanding of US law, and many decide to take a bar examination in California or other states.

The LLM in US Legal Studies Program is flexible and designed to help the student meet individual goals. The program is open to full-time and part-time students, who must complete 24 units within three years of matriculation. There are no required courses for JD graduates of ABA- or California-accredited law schools. Students who take a concentration choose from a list of courses set up by the concentration advisors. Graduates of US law schools generally choose all of their courses from the concentration area, but they can also choose courses from the general Law School course offerings. For course descriptions, visit our website at www.ggu.edu/law.

The LLM in US Legal Studies Program offers both US and foreign law school graduates opportunities to work in a US legal setting. Many international students work in paid law-related positions while in school and for a year after graduation. To qualify for clerk positions in law firms, public interest agencies, and nongovernmental organizations, attorneys must have a basic grasp of US law and research methods. Courses, research internships, and the many clinical programs available—including the Law School's in-house Environmental Law & Justice Clinic and Women's Employment Rights Clinic—prepare international students for work in US legal settings. Our Law Career Services Office helps students in preparing résumés and identifying employment goals, and we offer extensive bar preparation services.
