To Law School

JULY 8-JULY 25, 1996

Introduction to Law School

This program provides people who are considering a legal career information about what it would be like to attend law school. In addition, the program serves as a head start for those already admitted to law school by introducing them to the process of legal analysis and the world of law school.

Golden Gate Law School faculty members teach the program using the Socratic method of questioning students and challenging hypotheses. Classes therefore are quite lively and involve a high level of student participation. Participants read actual judicial opinions and advocate positions on behalf of "clients." In addition, participants learn and practice lawyering skills, including interviewing, counseling, negotiation, and dispute resolution. During the program, participants also have an opportunity to take a typical law school examination.

Students learn about the law school admissions process, financial aid options, employment opportunities, and the personal and social concerns of law students. Participants may meet informally with students, faculty, and attorneys working in a wide variety of legal fields. At the end of the program, students receive a Certificate of Completion. Both a day and an evening program are offered.
