The Introduction to Law School Program gives men and women considering a legal education a chance to experience the law school environment. The program provides a head start by acquainting students with the process of legal analysis, the Socratic method of questioning, and hypothetical problem solving.

Introduction to Law School

Be prepared for lively classes and a high level of student participation. You will read actual cases and advocate positions on behalf of "clients." You will begin to learn and practice lawyering skills, including interviewing, counseling, negotiating, and dispute resolution. You will even have an opportunity to take a typical law school examination and have your work critiqued.

Participants learn about the admissions process, financial aid options, employment opportunities, including clinical internships and externships, and how to cope with the rigors of the law school experience. Students meet with law students, faculty, and attorneys working in a variety of legal careers. A Certificate of Completion is awarded at the end of the program.

Both day and evening programs are offered.

The Faculty

This course is conducted by Golden Gate University School of Law, and all professors are experienced, full-time law faculty. Faculty who are scheduled for this year's program include:

Associate Dean Catherine Glaze, J.D. Stanford University. Before joining the Golden Gate faculty, Dean Glaze practiced commercial litigation for ten years. She taught Writing & Research and Appellate Advocacy, and was then named Associate Dean in 1996.

Professor Janice Kosel, J.D. U.C. Berkeley. A professor of contracts, commercial, and community property, Professor Kosel is the author of several books, including Bankruptcy: Do It Yourself, and Just in Case, which deals with the legal problems of aging.

Professor Maria Ontiveros, J.D. Harvard University. A specialist in labor and employment law, Professor Ontiveros taught at both the New York State School Of Industrial and Labor Relations and Stanford Law School. Professor Ontiveros teaches employment discrimination, labor law, and evidence.

Professor Bernard Segal, J.D. University of Pennsylvania. A nationally renowned criminal defense specialist and trial advocacy instructor, Professor Segal is also the coach of Golden Gate's award winning mock trial teams.

"San Francisco is a thriving and exciting city, and the program's location puts you right in the heart of everything."

Cheryl Barnes,
Program Director

Golden Gate University School of Law is accredited by the American Bar Association and is a member of the Association of American Law Schools.
